
Subject: Re: 2.6.18-ovz028test015 and 2.6.18-ovz028test018 break IPv6

Posted by Wolfgang Schnerring on Sun, 04 Mar 2007 06:30:33 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

* "Michael H. Warfield" <mhw@WittsEnd.com>:

> This may not be an OpenVZ problem, per se, though. Some time in the > very later part of the 2.6.18 kernel.org release updates, a problem was > introduced that broke IPv6. Some patch or another caused nodes to fail > to join the "all nodes multicast" (ff02::1) address. This is critical > to IPv6 router discovery and advertisement, neighbor discovery, and > autoconfiguration. All fall down go boom.

I've raised that same issue here: http://bugzilla.openvz.org/show_bug.cgi?id=476

But even though Den Lunev found and backported the upstream patch (I think from 2.6.20) that fixes the problem, I don't think this ever got into the OpenVZ repository... any update on this?

Wolfgang
