

---

Subject: Re: linux-2.6.20-openvz tree
Posted by kir on Sat, 24 Mar 2007 16:01:02 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Carl-Daniel Hailfinger wrote:

> On 23.03.2007 10:01, Kirill Korotaev wrote:

>

>> This was possible for years in OpenVZ:

>>

>> man vzctl

>> <http://openvz.org/documentation/mans/vzctl.8>

>>

>> Network devices control parameters

>> --netdev_add name

>>     move network device from VE0 to a specified VE

>> --netdev_del name

>>     delete network device from a specified VE

>>

>> this is exactly the thing you are talking about:

>> you can move eth0 and eth1 to one VE, eth2 and eth3 to another VE >> and keep eth4 to HN.

>>

>

> Great! The OpenVZ wiki seemed to suggest that this was not possible.

>

Can you fix this wiki page? Or at least point me to it, so I can fix?

> Next time I'll read the man pages and not only the wiki before > asking questions.

>