Hi Jim,

Ola has updated the debianized OpenVZ Linux kernel to new Debian Linux Kernel Source :

" linux-image-2.6.18-openvz-amd64_028.18-2.6.18-12-1_amd64.deb " :

linux-image-2.6.18-openvz-amd64 ...

028.18.1
_> OpenVZ Kernel Patch 028test018.1
(-> http://packages.debian.org/stable/devel/kernel-patch-openvz)

2.6.18-12-1
_> Debian Linux Kernel Source
(-> http://packages.debian.org/stable/devel/linux-source-2.6.18)

Regards,
Thorsten

Jim Archer schrieb:
> Hi All...
>
> I have always been confused by the kernel version numbers and I finally > decided to just look stupid and ask.
>
> I am currently running:
>
> actual:/home/jim/openvz/kernels# uname -a > Linux actual.registrationtek.com 2.6.18-openvz-amd64 #1 SMP Mon Mar 12
> 21:59:13 UTC 2007 x86_64 GNU/Linux
> actual:/home/jim/openvz/kernels#
>
>
> The file name for the deb package for this version is:
>
> linux-image-2.6.18-openvz-amd64_028.18-2.6.18-11-1_amd64.deb
>
> I see that there is now:
>
> linux-image-2.6.18-openvz-amd64_028.18.1-2.6.18-12-1_amd64.d eb
>
>
> This file has a date of April 11, 2007, so I know it's newer. But how > can I tell from the version numbers? Both are 028.18 but the newer one > has a lower number, .1-2, than the older one, which has 6. So what's > the proper way to parse this?

>
> Also, is there a posted list of changes? I'm running OpenVZ in > production now and so prefer not to risk an upgrade and reboot unless > necessary.
>
> Thanks!
>
> Jim
>