Subject: Re: Problem to install package in a VPS with Centos
Posted by rickb on Tue, 08 May 2007 10:56:13 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi. The bottom line is vzyum was not designed to run in gentoo. Gentoo has no concept of installed rpms. You could try to force the rpm installation and it should work, but if it doesn't people will just tell you forcing was a bad idea.

What I would do is enter the VE, and use yum to install whatever specific packages you need. From inside the VE, your yum will function with a proper rpm program and rpm database.