Subject: Re: Re: [patch 05/10] add "permit user mounts in new namespace" clone flag
Posted by ebiederm on Mon, 16 Apr 2007 15:43:55 GMT

Miklos Szeredi <miklos@szeredi.hu> writes:

> That depends. Current patches check the "unprivileged submounts > allowed under this mount" flag only on the requested mount and not on > the propagated mounts. Do you see a problem with this?

I think privileges of this sort should propagate. If I read what you just said correctly if I have a private mount namespace I won't be able to mount anything unless when it was setup the unprivileged submount command was explicitly set.

Eric

_____