
Subject: Re: Physical server to OpenVZ
Posted by kir on Sat, 15 Sep 2007 09:44:47 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

P2V migration is described in http://wiki.openvz.org/Physical_to_VE, that involves some manual tuning.

V2P is also possible but don't make much sense to me -- it's way better to use VE than a real server.

Stefan Kok wrote:

> Hi List
>
> I am brand new to OpenVZ. I will get straight to the point.
>
> I want to backup physical servers on remote sites with tar/dump and > restore them at our central office to virtual machine. Once disaster > strikes move the virtual server to a new physical server and transport > it to the remote office.
>
>
> My question:
>
> 1) Is this possible (backup physical server and restore to virtual) ?
> 2) If so is there any documentation / HOWTO's or pointers that you could > give please ?
>
> Thanks in advance.
>
> Regards
> Stefan.
>
