
Subject: Re: AW: VPS capabilities

Posted by dev on Wed, 10 Oct 2007 10:03:11 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Most likely there answer is - possible, but not easily. vzctl requires access to some of vps files, global configs, ve configs etc. Theoretically it can be fixed and adopted (e.g. to have 2 global configs: one in VE0 for admin VPS start and one in admin VPS; files from all VEs can also be accessible via bind mount to admin VE), but on practice no one tried it.

Thanks,
Kirill

Dietmar Maurer wrote:

> Ah -i see. So it is possible to run vzctl inside a vps and do most vps > admin tasks there?

>

> - Dietmar

>

>

>>>VE_ADMIN

>>

>>it is a restricted subset of CAP_SYS_ADMIN+CAP_NET_ADMIN capability for

>

> VE root.

>

>>it allows to do a lot of thing allowed for std root, like configuring

>

> firewalls,

>

>>network devices, etc. but not everything, e.g. VE root can't change

>

> mtrr

>

>>registers, can't issue raw SCSI commands, etc.

>

>

>
