Good heavens, for the love of life and everything pure and good in the world, no!

Perhaps we can get a kernel.org git tree? Each submission can be put in as seperate branches.

For instance I have already been doing this for several submissions, see

<http://vserver.utsi.gen.nz/gitweb/?p=vserver;a=heads>

This doesn't include Dave's or Kirill's patches yet (as of -0328T15:53+12).

OK, now it does (as of -0328T17:23+12).

I am more than happy to continue to track people's submissions in this way, but they probably belong on kernel.org

Sam.
