
Subject: Re: terminal resizing
Posted by ldv on Tue, 08 Jan 2008 17:51:04 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

On Tue, Jan 08, 2008 at 10:13:47AM -0700, Gregor Mosheh wrote:

> Hey, all. I have a recurring issue, and finally thought to ask about it.
>
> I use PuTTY to login to my HN. I then use vzctl enter to enter a VPS.
> As long as I am in the VPS, I cannot resize my putty window and have the > VPS's terminal follow it. e.g. if I make the window taller while running > top, top will not extend to fill the space below; if I'm using vi, vi > will think that the terminal is the old size and I get weird effects > trying to edit anything.
>
> Any thoughts on why this happens, or how I can work around it? I've > tried experimenting with stty and the TERM variable, but so far nothing > helps.

See http://bugzilla.openvz.org/show_bug.cgi?id=683
Consider updating to vzctl>=3.0.19.

--
ldv
