thanks for the reply. for the kernel, i'm using the one from openvz. it is not a network issue because the commands are missing from the guest OS. I can vzctl to the guest and ping out. but most of the applications (core apps i think) are missing. no wget, no locate, no openssh, no yum, no nano/pico, and a lot more that should be there with a standard install of centos5.