Subject: Re: VPS Services and templates
Posted by touchvps on Thu, 17 Apr 2008 11:56:07 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

webbytech wrote on Thu, 17 April 2008 07:48If anyone is looking for cpanel or directadmin i have templates created in both CentOS 4 and CentOS5. TouchVPS was going to chage me $100 for 4 templates and i spent an hour and made them myself. DirectAdmin template is approximately 420mb and cPanel template is approximately 750mb.

Also, if anyone wants another flavor OS with the panels let me know.

Im also working on several OS's with webmin and plesk although i do not have a plesk license available.

DirectAdmin will require a script run on the host node or inside the VPS once its installed to change IP's and etc.

cPanel will automatically update with your ip based on the license and the IP that you use.
yes we do charge you ,we don't offer cpanel templates like a basic cpanel installation , this are with FFMPEG Support, secrity, firewall scripts, ddos firewall protection and many onther tools that you don't offer, if you offer yours free then may feel free to post your templates on http://wiki.openvz.org/Partners if are free . with our templates you are getting updates , and support 1 year ,see that is why we charge form the first time.