heh, that was what i wanted to ask as well, but didn't want to trash the thread, or idea. I think the concept is ideal for people who are too lazy todo this themselves, but then when I think about it. Hosting is a handson thing, and it's about know what happens to every aspect of the hosting envrionment, whether it's a server or VPS. setting up a CentOS container takes me 5 minutes, and then 20 minutes to install the latest up to date cPanel
