Subject: Re: Load Sharing/Balancing and Standby Redundacy among VMs
Posted by Jonathan on Thu, 04 May 2006 06:06:16 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You can easily install a squid load balancer to load balance http and httpd traffic with 2/3 environments.

I'm not aware of any built-in support.

Jonathan Lambert

On May 3, 2006, at 5:16 PM, Joe Lee wrote:

> Hi All, I am new to the list and just getting into using OpenVZ. I > have the following questions:
>
> 1) Does OpenVZ supports any type of load sharing and load balancing > across VMs on the same physical machine > and/or across different host via the Host OS.
>
> 2) How about Stanby Redundacy from two or more different HOST.
>
> Just curious if any of the above type of technology solutions exist > using OpenVZ. I know this type of technology exist in the router/> firewall world - Would be nice if that kind of stuff is supported > for OpenVZ.
>
> Thanks in advance for your comments!
>
> Joe