Subject: Re: Clock in VPS loosing time quickly
Posted by jarcher on Sun, 04 May 2008 07:23:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Kirill, thanks very much for the quick reply. The host system's clock is dead on because the host system runs NTP. Its just the VPSs that get messed up.

--On Sunday, May 04, 2008 11:19 AM +0400 Kirill Korotaev
<dev@parallels.com> wrote:

> 1. plz check that host time screws up quickly as well.
> 2. check dmesg on boot and find what timesource was selected by kernel on > boot.   most likely you need to boot with someother timesource like tsc > or hpet.
>
> Thanks,
> Kirill
>
> Jim Archer wrote:
>> Hi All...
>>
>> I am running OpenVZ on a Debian server, uname -a returns:
>>
>> 2.6.18-fza-5-amd64 #1 SMP Thu Nov 1 16:15:07 UTC 2007 x86_64 GNU/Linux
>>
>> I am finding that my VPSs lose time very quickly. I have tried >> installing an NTP client but this does not seem to work properly. Is >> there a recommended way to keep my clocks set properly?
>>
>> Thanks...
>>
>>
>>