Taking into account that there were updates of kernels in may and today, may 24, there are no relevant mails in announcement mailing list it feels like list is dead:

<http://openvz.org/pipermail/announce/>

Updates on web site are useful for general community and review of project but for maintainers it's hard to live being poll driven (force us open web pages to check for updates... consider the number of packages we sometimes have to deal with) rather than event driven (mail come => we know what to do). Thus, please, send mails into announce mailing list!
