

---

Subject: Re: openvz patched vanilla kernel vs redhat kernel

Posted by maratrus on Tue, 19 Aug 2008 09:49:18 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hello,

I've spoken about this and have been able to derive the only one opinion.

RHEL based kernel is "better" than vanilla because RedHat does a lot of work and includes in its kernel a lot of security, stability patches.

OpenVZ patches (RHEL based and vanilla) shouldn't be different in logic. They must only be applicable to the appropriate kernel.

---