For what I tested, you can mount the partitions on the host, then bind-mount those in VEs, but then VZ quotas will not work (I do not know for such things as user quotas on bind-mounts - did not test ; but it would also be good)... so, you will have to size the partitions according to your need before bind-mounting them...

Having VZ and users quotas on bind-mounts would certainly be an excellent feature, bringing a real lot of flexibility : so much more straightforward than a LVM - this is definitely something I would second as a feature request.
