

---

Subject: Re: Calculating kmemsize

Posted by spectator on Thu, 23 Jul 2009 10:14:21 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

`kmemsize >= 40960 * avnumproc + datacachesize`

Would it be fair to say that this value is ok for 'average' use?

It strikes me as incredible that so few people need to know how to calculate this value.

Does everyone simply use `vzsplit` or is there some other method of provisioning a container?

I guess this would account for why there are so many badly configured containers out there.

---