

---

Subject: Any news on a new kernel branch?

Posted by gkovacs on Sat, 10 Oct 2009 21:16:28 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

As the current stable Linux kernel is rapidly approaching the 2.6.32 version, including a lot of exciting drivers and technologies (like the ext4 filesystem), I wonder what are the plans of the OpenVZ developers for a new development kernel branch?

- What kernel version is planned?
- In what timeframe can we expect it?

Also, when is the stable branch going to be stepped up from the 3 year old 2.6.18? I tried searching for a roadmap in the OpenVZ Wiki, but it's not available.

Is OpenVZ under active development?

---