You will need to read up on this. See the above posts.

Most expert forum users will ignore you and other newbies -unless you prove yourself and/or it helps the paid tools guys.

You were lucky so far . Use a webgui to run your VZ nodes, if you do not have the time to learn and tinker on your own. Some vz manager software will make sure you do not overcommit resources and even adjust your UBCs for you.

Just remember there is a war in progress: vz/xen/vmware among other virtualization tech. (and of course the paid vs. free tools.)
