This saved my sanity as well.. I have a debian etch image that suddenly started giving me strange errors when running utilities such as mc, or man. I did the search on 'openvz command exited with status 256' and came across this posting. When I checked the dev folder, the tty node was totally different from the others nodes. I reset it using your suggestion and now on my problems have gone away. I can once again use mc, a favourite.

Thanks for the solution..

Rob
