Subject: Re: problem with veth feature..
Posted by Rachid Abdoun on Thu, 29 Jun 2006 15:04:41 GMT

Oh tank you so much it works!!

How can I load this module automatically?

thanks

> If you compiled kernel yourself then check that you enabled > CONFIG_VE_ETHDEV option.
> If you took binary kernel from openvz.org then check that you have > loaded the required kernel module:
> # modprobe vzethdev
>
> Thanks,
> Kirill
>
>> Hello,
>> I'm trying to use the new features of openvz (veth...) but i >> encounter problems... i have this kernel :
>> phoenix:~# uname -a >> Linux phoenix 2.6.16-026test014 #1 Fri Jun 23 13:29:16 CEST 2006
>> i686  GNU/Linux
>> (compiled myself)
>> and version 3.0.10 of vzctl :
>> phoenix:~# vzctl --version
>> vzctl version 3.0.10
>> i run 2 PV'S :
>> phoenix:~# vzctl status 101
>> VPSID 101 exist mounted running
>> phoenix:~# vzctl status 102
>> VPSID 102 exist mounted running
>> when i try to add veth on a VPs i have this error :
>> phoenix:~# vzctl set 101 --veth_add >> veth101.0,00:12:34:56:78:9A,eth0,00:12:34:56:78:9B --save >> Processing veth devices
>> Warning: veth feature is not supported by kernel, skipped veth
>> configure
>> Saved parameters for VPS 101
>> what can I do? Thank you!
>> - Rachid