Subject: Re: glusterfs/moosefs/etc as openvz backend?
Posted by Toby Burress on Fri, 29 Apr 2011 17:36:03 GMT

On Fri, Apr 29, 2011 at 12:46:56PM +0200, Aleksandar Ivanisevic wrote:
>
> Hi,
>
> Is it possible to use a distributed file system like gluster or > moosefs as a backend for openvz? I don't mean mounting it in a VE, but > running the complete VE on it, i.e. mounting /vz/root on a HN on it.
>
> I've googled a bit and all I see is problems, hangs, etc. Has anyone > successfuly done this?

Our disaster recovery scenario, which has been invoked three or four times, involves running a VE via NFS until a local copy exists, and it works pretty well. However, they've never run like that for more than about a day.