I don't use rsync for openvz so I can't help with first hand experience, but the first thing I would do when implementing a backup solution is a restore test. Backups are seldom problematic, restores... well... don't get me started.

Are you seeing any errors when backing the data up? You don't seem to be excluding any files or directories, etc. Create a test container yourself, back it up, delete it, restore it... Tell us all how it went.
