

---

Subject: Re: NTP Server in einer virtuellen Umgebung
Posted by MailingListe on Sun, 11 Dec 2011 19:36:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Zitat von Daniel Pittman <daniel@rimspace.net>:

> On Sun, Dec 11, 2011 at 07:09, Daniel Bauer <mlist@dsb-gmbh.de> wrote:
>
>> I've a VPS for my internal LAN, which should also be used as a NTP server.
>> The HN has already synchronized the time by de.pool.ntp.org, so the time is >> also ok inside the VPS.
>> The NTP server inside the VPS stalled, ntpq -p shows:
>
> You don't need NTP inside the container, just on the HN. The VE can't > set the time anyhow.

Not really true. You need special capabilities assigned to the VE to let it manage your system clock. So if you need ntp inside the VE you should do something like "vzctl set <VEID> --capability sys_time:on", install ntp inside the VE and deinstall it on the HN.

Regards

Andreas

File Attachments

---

1) smime.p7s, downloaded 479 times

---