So it's pretty normal for you when all of your cron jobs, which you've put inside cron.daily, just don't work, right? To me -- that seems like a disaster.

// Just in case you are wondering what took me so long to figure out that there is such an issue: those cron jobs I'm talking about only produce some mail output when something's wrong. No mail -- all good.
And if there was a problem, I wouldn't know about it because there were no checks.
