
Subject: RE: [PATCH 0/5] SUNRPC: make caches network namespace aware
Posted by Myklebust, Trond on Thu, 19 Jan 2012 15:34:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Stanislav Kinsbursky [mailto:skinsbursky@parallels.com]

> Sent: Thursday, January 19, 2012 10:32 AM

> To: Myklebust, Trond

> Cc: Dr James Bruce Fields; linux-nfs@vger.kernel.org; Pavel Emelianov;

> neilb@suse.de; netdev@vger.kernel.org; linux-kernel@vger.kernel.org;

> James Bottomley; bfields@fieldses.org; davem@davemloft.net;

> devel@openvz.org

> Subject: Re: [PATCH 0/5] SUNRPC: make caches network namespace aware

>

> > On Thu, 2012-01-19 at 18:48 +0400, Stanislav Kinsbursky wrote:

> >> One more step towards to "NFS in container".

> >> With this patch set caches are allocated per network namespace.

> >>

> >> The following series consists of:

> >>

> >> ---

> >>

> >> Stanislav Kinsbursky (5):

> >> SUNRPC: cache creation and destruction routines introduced

> >> SUNRPC: create unix gid cache per network namespace

> >> SUNRPC: create GSS auth cache per network namespace

> >> SUNRPC: ip map cache per network namespace cleanup

> >> SUNRPC: generic cache register routines removed

> >>

> > The patches look good, and I've applied them for now in my 'devel' > > branch so we can test them, but I'd like to get an Ack/Nack from Bruce > > before committing to merging them.

> >

>

> Cool, thanks.

> BTW, these patches depends on patch "NFSd: use network-namespace-> aware cache registering routines", which Bruce took already (and it's even in > linux-next already), but not in your devel tree for some reason.

In that case, would it make more sense to carry them in Bruce's tree?

--

Trond Myklebust

Linux NFS client maintainer

NetApp

Trond.Myklebust@netapp.com

