Good morning Kir,

could you perhaps give a short info on why the stable openvz kernel 2.6.8-022stab078.10 is not vulnerable?

For Debian Sarge (they use also 2.6.8 as stable kernel) the Debian guys published an update:
<http://www.debian.org/security/2006/dsa-1111>

So to me (without being a kernel hacker) it would be nice to understand why the 2.6.8 of openvz it not vulnerable, while the 2.6.8 of debian was.

thanks in advance,
best wishes from sunny Austria,
Werner
