Subject: Re: [Announce] Checkpoint-restore tool v0.1 Posted by richard -rw- weinberg on Tue, 31 Jul 2012 10:21:58 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

```
On Tue, Jul 31, 2012 at 12:16 PM, Cyrill Gorcunov <gorcunov@openvz.org> wrote:
> On Tue, Jul 31, 2012 at 12:08:22PM +0200, richard -rw- weinberger wrote:
>> On Tue, Jul 31, 2012 at 11:54 AM, Pavel Emelyanov <xemul@parallels.com> wrote:
>> >> Yeah, but I fear it's not that easy.
>> >> We'd have to change crtools to work without ptrace().
>> >
>> > Well, this is hard. Using ptrace saved us from having many special-purpose >> > APIs for dumping various stuff (there will be an article about it). Thus I >> > don't know which way is simpler -- stop using ptrace or teach ptrece to allow >> > several tracers to attach to one task %)
>>
>> Allowing multiple tracers in a safe way is IMHO even more harder.
>>
>> BTW: While reading prctl_set_mm() I noticed two things.
>> 1. Why isn't the return value of find vma() verified?
>
> prctl set mm
      vma = find vma(mm, addr);
>
      if (!vma) {
>
           error = -EFAULT;
>
           goto out:
>
      }
>
> these values are used in procfs statistics only. So I don't get > which verify you mean here.
If I do PR_SET_MM_START_BRK the if(!vma) will never be executed because there a break in case PR_SET_MM_START_BRK.
Thanks,
//richard
```