With a venet0:0 which also had IP-adress 127.0.0.1 (I just checked with the old script) I didn't have experience any problems, but then again I have not done much experiments with the old script. I changed it alsmost after everything worked, because I didn't like the complexity .

I still would like to know if my way raise any problems later on. Or like you why the standard script does it in the way it does. What is the reasoning...
