I think OVZ7 is the way to go as of today. Not saying it's production ready yet or that LXC won't catch up or that LXD won't get there someday. Just as of today it looks like the way things 'may' be heading. Pretty sure it is much more secure in a hosting environment as of today compared to LXC.

Solus and Virtualizor both have beta OVZ 7 support now. Emphasis on "beta". Maybe even more like alpha.
