This is now fixed. They migrated to Atlassian hosted JIRA, which is at least faster!

Downsides:

1. It looks like logins couldn't be migrated, so new accounts are needed
 2. The data migrated appears to be many months old, so any changes to bugs reported or updated on the JIRA instance that was at bugs.openvz.org since around mid-April are now missing :(
 3. If you register a new account, you can no longer create issues or comment on them... which is definitely odd for what is supposed to be a community project.
