
Subject: Re: [PATCH] IA64,sparc: local DoS with corrupted ELF's

Posted by Jes Sorensen on Fri, 08 Sep 2006 09:12:21 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

>>>> "Arjan" == Arjan van de Ven <arjan@infradead.org> writes:

Arjan> On Wed, 2006-09-06 at 12:27 -0600, Matthew Wilcox wrote:

>> On Wed, Sep 06, 2006 at 11:24:05AM -0700, Linus Torvalds wrote: >

>> If MIPS and parisc don't matter for the stable tree (very possible

>> - there > are no big commercial distributions for them), then >> dammit, neither should > ia64 and sparc (there are no big >> commercial distros for them either).

>>

>> Erm, RHEL and SLES both support ia64.

Arjan> but neither use -stable.

And getting a patch into -stable tends to be a really good argument for a backport into the next vendor kernel :)

Cheers,

Jes
