

---

Subject: Re: reboot a VPS

Posted by kir on Thu, 12 Jan 2006 14:34:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

The thing is, reboot is performed in two stages. First, you run reboot (or init 6) inside a VPS and it gets stopped. Second, there is a cron job that runs every 5 minutes (by default) which sees that VPS needs to be rebooted and start it.

You can change it to be run every minute by editing `/etc/cron.d/vpsreboot` (just remove `/5`).

---