Subject: Re: [PATCH, try3, 0/3] Separate logfile and console loglevel Posted by kir on Thu, 07 Dec 2006 13:23:42 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

```
Dmitry Mishin wrote:
> On Thursday 07 December 2006 15:47, Igor Sukhih wrote:
>> Kir Kolyshkin wrote:
>>
>>>
>>>> If I type "vzctl set 1001 ...", I would asume everything went OK, >>>> if I get no output.
>>>>
>>>>
>>> Agreed, this is true UNIX way :)
>> Lets do not display any info messages by default, go by UNIX way :)
> Probably, global poll helps?;)
> I think, the default console level is secondary question indeed.
> Split of console level and log level is usefull. So, my opinion is to > leave default level AS IS, because somebody may use this output > somewhere in his scripts (it's bad, but who knows these users?;)).
> Kristian may intro alias in his shell in order to decrease level to `no output` > value.
I'd rather have a config option than an alias.
```