Subject: Re: /etc/hosts Posted by Farkas Levente on Mon, 11 Dec 2006 14:43:13 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message Kirill Korotaev wrote: > Farkas Levente wrote: >> hi. >> why put openvz into each VE's /etc/hosts the hostname itself too? ie: >> 127.0.0.1 host.example.com host localhost localhost.localdomain >> and why do this on all reboot, why not accept >> 127.0.0.1 localhost localhost.localdomain >> it has some reasons? >> thanks. >> yours. >> > > If HOSTNAME set in VE config it is updated on every VE start. > hostname is bound to 127.0.0.1 for simplicity of updates on ip change i.e > it doesn't depend on ip in such a scheme. ok, but in this case all tool like netstat, iptables etc.. assumes 127.0.0.1 as hostname and it's really annoying netstat -lt: # netstat -lt 0 host.example.com:smtp tcp 0 LISTEN 0 host.example.com:smtp tcp 0 LISTEN # netstat -ltn 0 0 127.0.0.1:smtp LISTEN tcp tcp 0 1.2.3.4:smtp LISTEN

Levente

"Si vis pacem para bellum!"