Subject: Re: Openvz Application
Posted by dev on Wed, 27 Dec 2006 16:50:33 GMT

David Baron wrote:
> What I am thinking of trying is:
>
> Virtual machine will handle all internet access (router/proxy). It would have > apache running as a webserver, possibly SMTP server as well. Sites may or may > not be opened to the rest of the world. Maybe testing only on this v-server.
> Would likely use the Debian stable cache provided.
>
> Host machine will access the internet using this router, the web through the > proxy with Dansgardian (or would this be on the virtual as well). Running > Debian Sid with patched 2.6.18 most recent kernel.
>
> How do I set this up? Internet connection is ADSL but NOT PPPOEA. Would I > simply move relevant files to the VE?
>
> Caveats:
> 1. I only have 512m memory, PIII 575mhz junker.
> 2. I only have one, dynamic IP (but as I said, the ve would use this and be a > router to the host).
dynamic IP means DHCP? if so, then you will need to use veth networking for being able to use broadcasts.
in other regards, I see no much problems.
if you want to use it as a router, I would add ethernet adapters and granted them to VE for exclusive usage.

Kirill