Subject: Re: Memory & SWAP
Posted by rickb on Tue, 23 Jan 2007 01:15:05 GMT

privvm and phys will never be equal or even close in most cases. As the manual/wiki states, privvm is memory allocation whereas phys is memory usage. Most applications allocate large gobs of memory and actually use a fraction of it. you can look at privvm as the potential memory usage of the running applications and phys as the actual memory usage.