Subject: Re: Some problem !!!!
Posted by dim on Wed, 31 Jan 2007 11:41:55 GMT

Because OpenVZ kernel doesn't support it. You need to disable it in /etc/sysconfig/selinux.

As OpenVZ may be treated as another security model, it is required some work in order to make SELinux security model available in VEs and HN and doesn't break OpenVZ one. So, for now it is not supported.