Appears to be down, or is it actually down? Websites working or not isn't a reliable way to check.

If your VM really isn't starting, please post your vzkernel version, openvz tools version, host OS version and which template (actual OS version of the template) is this VM using.

You've made so many posts in this forum that you should have learned to provide at least basic information by now...

Also, my previous experiences tell me that the relatime message is most likely harmless. Do you see any other errors? Did you make any recent changes to the VM or to the node configuration?
