Hi.

I'm working on Libre Software Meeting '07 (RMLL), which may occur in July, and will be in the town of Amiens, in France as usual.

I am the leader of the conferences cycle about clustering and virtualization.

For this topic, I would have one or two persons able to make a keynote about vServers, and would be able to organize a meeting between some of the open source actors of clustering & virtualization.

Would you be interested in ?

Will you be able to travel to Amiens in France for July ?

Thanks in advance.

PS: i'm a regular reader of the mailing list.

Sure, that makes sense! I plan to be there and can do an OS-virtualization keynote.

Also, if enough developers from other virtualization projects (Linux-VServer, IBM, perhaps Eric Biederman) will come -- we will come together with one or two kernel guys.

People whom I suggest you to invite:

* Cedric Le Goater: clg at fr.ibm.com

* Daniel Lezcano: dlezcano at fr.ibm.com

* Eric Biederman: ebiederm at xmission.com

* Herbert Poetzl: herbert at 13thfloor.at

Finally -- where can we have some more information about the event? How many days, how many people, etc.
