Hi,

Thanks for the Kernel Upgrade, however when trying to install it, it kicks out a message:

[root@vz1 src]# rpm -ivh ovzkernel-smp-2.6.8-022stab061.1.i686.rpm warning: ovzkernel-smp-2.6.8-022stab061.1.i686.rpm: V3 DSA signature: NOKEY, key ID a7a1d4b6
error: Failed dependencies:
    vzkernel-install is needed by ovzkernel-smp-2.6.8-022stab061.1.i686

I also tried rpm -Uvh but no luck either.

Any ideas?

Ok, I'll wait

Also, there's a recursive dependency with the vzctl and vzctl-lib as well.

vzctl complains that the older version vzctl-lib requires the older versoin and such. Kind of painful, I'd have to completely uninstall both vzctl and vzctl-lib before installing the new one. The -U switch doesn't seem to fix that.

The only way I could find to get it to install is to do:

rpm -Uvh vzctl* (it is a good idea to put the new vzctl rpm's in their own directory before doing that).

Fill the bug please, we'll push vzctl supporter to get them more separated

But indeed, most of vzctl releases contains fixes in both vzctl and vzctl-lib, so, this is right condition.

Ok, I'll put it in bugzilla, it's not a major issue if you run them all on the same command.
