
Subject: Plesk license for virtuoizzo valid in OpenVZ?

Hi,

I have installed correctly a Parallels Plesk demo on a OpenVZ ve.

I can see, the virtuoizzo license is too cheap than standard Linux license.

People who uses OpenVZ can get (legally and working) the Virtuoizzo license? It's legal and correct?

Thanks for help

Regards,
Victor Amil

I think this is wrong place to ask. Since this is _Plesk_ license, why don't you ask Plesk people?

I'm sorry. I was not attempting to create a "off topic" post.
Maybe some people have vz licenses in their ovz boxes (i don't know if this is legal). The price between vz vps license and general linux license is very high, so here my curiosity. Technically ovz and vz are based in the same code, and maybe these "discount" license could be valid in the opensource version of virtuoizzo.

Thanks

that i'm aware of, they're not valid.

the discount on the plesk license is an incentive for the user to lease virtuoizzo. if you're not leasing virtuoizzo, then this would invalidate the license.
