Kir, unfortunately, I'm not so familiar with git. I cannot find a way to extract the pure OpenVZ patchset from your git repository (it looks like the whole kernel tree is under git control).

I understand that I can retrieve the head branch from your repository, then perform a diff between your repository and vanilla kernel 2.6.16.9... Perhaps, there is another more simple option to retrieve the broke-out version of your patches?

Let me know, please.

Thanks!
