Hello,

It is said that OpenVZ can be used for educational purpose, letting each student to have access to the root-user in each container. But to enter a container, you have to be root in the physical-host, so is there a way to let the student connect to the Container without being root in the host computer?

I suppose that that statement means an access directly to the container not through the HN, for example via ssh. Is it possible to realize?
