
Subject: Re: Whether the vswap use disk
Posted by azagzin on Sat, 03 Sep 2011 20:00:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The difference between normal swap and vswap is that with vswap no actual disk I/O usually occurs. Instead, a container is artificially slowed down, to emulate the effect of the real swapping. Actual swap out occurs only if there is a global memory shortage on the system.

please read this first:
<http://wiki.openvz.org/VSwap>
