Subject: RE: [PATCH 0/5] SUNRPC: make caches network namespace aware
Posted by Myklebust, Trond on Thu, 19 Jan 2012 15:34:02 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

> -----Original Message-----
> From: Stanislav Kinsbursky [mailto:skinsbursky@parallels.com]
> Sent: Thursday, January 19, 2012 10:32 AM
> To: Myklebust, Trond
> Cc: Dr James Bruce Fields; linux-nfs@vger.kernel.org; Pavel Emelianov; > neilb@suse.de; netdev@vger.kernel.org; linux-kernel@vger.kernel.org;
> James Bottomley; bfields@fieldses.org; davem@davemloft.net;
> devel@openvz.org
> Subject: Re: [PATCH 0/5] SUNRPC: make caches network namespace aware
>

> > On Thu, 2012-01-19 at 18:48 +0400, Stanislav Kinsbursky wrote:
> >> One more step towards to "NFS in container".
> >> With this patch set caches are allocated per network namespace.
> >>
> >> The following series consists of:
> >>
> >> ---
> >>
> >> Stanislav Kinsbursky (5):
> >>   SUNRPC: cache creation and destruction routines introduced
> >>   SUNRPC: create unix gid cache per network namespace
> >>   SUNRPC: create GSS auth cache per network namespace
> >>   SUNRPC: ip map cache per network namespace cleanup
> >>   SUNRPC: generic cache register routines removed
> >
> > The patches look good, and I've applied them for now in my 'devel' > > branch so we can test them, but I'd like to get an Ack/Nack from Bruce > > before committing to merging them.
> >
>
> Cool, thanks.
> BTW, these patches depends on patch "NFSd: use network-namespace-> aware cache registering routines", which Bruce took already (and it's even in > linux-next already), but not in your devel tree for some reason.

In that case, would it make more sense to carry them in Bruce's tree?

--
Trond Myklebust
Linux NFS client maintainer

NetApp
Trond.Myklebust@netapp.com