Subject: Automated dedicated server transfer possible?

I have a managed dedicated server, and I am pretty fed up with my current host. I know it is possible to do a full server account export (including settings, mysql databases, etc) from within the data center using WHM or CPanel. I forget which.

My question is: if I setup a comparable machine with a new host, and give them access to my old server, will they be able to do the same thing? Or will we have to start from scratch setting up each account, email server, and importing databases and user credentials individually?

Sorry if I'm missing something here, but I pay for a managed server so that I don't have to know all the technical details. Not that it ended up doing me much good...
