Hi,

OpenVZ has been added to Update-Scout.com, an interactive web service, that informs its users about software updates and releases. Users can set up personal update news feeds from the Update-Scout software catalog and even add new entries to the catalog. The address is http://www.update-scout.com .

The current version number is retrieved from the OpenVZ download pages. If there is a better (i.e. more stable) possibility to automatically check for the version number (e.g. PAD file; any http/ftp request plus regex is possible), I would be happy to know.

Thanks,

Peter Kullmann
