OK, I'm really getting confused about what is going on. We have some people arguing for "Software Zones" some for Beancounters, others for even more. :)

Can we put together some kind of summary of what we _all_ need?

I've made a wiki page:

http://linux-mm.org/SoftwareZones

There are "Requirements" and "Icing on the Cake". The Requirements should be few and far between. Please don't confuse "my patch can do this today" with "we must have this" :). But, if I missed a basic requirement, please add it.

Let's also go and mark up how each approach stacks up against the requirements and "Icing" points. I think most of us are forgetting where we're causing others' pain. A big red cell in a table should help.

If you hate wikis, please just send any comments to me, and I'll transfer them over there.
